Saurashtra and Kutch - History

One of the greatest cluster of Jain monuments in Gujarat can be seen at Palitana, near the east coast of Saurashtra, where one of the most impressive temple complexes in India is situated on a sacred mountain summit, the Shatrunjaya hill. The temples are set in nine enclosures called Tuks, set on two ridges of the pinnacle, and some of the best works of Jain temple architecture can be seen in the Khateshwar tuk. The view of the temple cluster, with its massed domes and shikhars reaching out to the sky, against a backdrop of hilly countryside and the river Shatrunnaya is one of the greatest sights you can hope to see during a tour of India. The historic 863 temple complex has exquisite carvings, jewelled idols and detailed architecture, and an awesome aura of devotion.

In the granite hills near Palitana, Sihore was the capital of the Gohil Rajputs in the 17th century, and being the rulers of a prime coastland often faced battles and skirmishes with neighbouring rulers.

Sihore Darbargadh was built to defend Gohilwad from the Kathi darbars of the Kathiawad hinterlands. The main palace inside the fortifications has a carved wooden facade and the rooms inside have wall paintings depicting historic battles and other subjects. From the fort terraces can be seen the granite hills, which provided superb natural defences for Sihore Darbargadh, and hilltop watchtowers from where warnings could be flashed to the inhabitants of the town. The Gohils moved their capital to Bhavnagar and commissioned European architects like Sir William Emerson, whose other works include Calcutta's Victoria memorial, to build their palaces and public buildings.

West of Palitana is Mt Girnar, which rises 3660 ft over MSL on the outskirts of Junagadh city. The 12th century temples on the summit are exquisitely carved and superbly designed. Near the foot of Mt Girnar are relics of another religion, Buddhism, which like Jainism preached non-violence. The edicts of emperor Ashoka, the Mauryan ruler who helped spread Buddhism throughout south and south eastern Asia in the 3rd century BC, have been inscribed on basalt rock enroute from Girnar to Junagadh. The hills around Junagadh have Buddhist cave complexes dating from the rule of the Kshtrapas. One of these is in the Uparkot fort, which rises from a hill over Junagadh city. The Uparkot was believed to be a walled citadel upto the 5th century AD and again during Chudasama Rajput reign from the 9th to the 15th centuries. The fort has a high wall strengthened by bastions, with a huge moat inside the walls, granaries large enough to withstand a long siege, a Rajput palace that the sultans partially converted to a mosque after their conquest of Junagadh, Ottoman canons, and two imposing stepwells. The Mughals conquered Gujarat from the sultans and their subhas(governors) of Sorath were based in Uparkot fort. After the decline of Mughal power, the subhas founded their own dynasty, taking on Babi as their last name, and became the Nawabs of Junagadh. During their reign, Junagadh saw the rise of numerous buildings including palaces, the imposing Baha-ud-din college, the old maqbara and the fun-fairish 19th century mausoleum complex. A selection of their howdahs, palanquins, textiles and furnishings can be seen at the Durbarhall museum.

South of Junagadh is Somnath, well known for its temples. The Somnath temple is believed to have been built by Gods and their avatars(incarnations) but the earliest recorded phase in the history of Somnath's Shiva temple is the 10th century Solanki reign of Gujarat. The temple was subjected to plunder and destruction by invaders over the centuries, and each time the resilient devotees restored it to its former glory. The present temple building was renovated in 1950.

AD under the leadership of Sardar Patel. Near the temple is the Prabhas Patan museum which houses architectural fragments and sculptures from the original temple of Somnath. A Sun temple, lord Krishna cenotaph and the Ahilya Holkar temple are other devotional monuments of Somnath. Lord Shiva, while stating he was omnipresent, mentioned that Somnath was one of his 12 important abodes, the reason the shore temple here is revered as a Jyotirlinga.

Like Somnath, Dwarka is one of the important Hindu shore temples, attracting millions of pilgrims. From the architectural viewpoint, an interesting temple is the Rukmani mandir, dated to the 12th and 13th centuries. Marine excavations indicate the presence of an ancient city, submerged by the sea.

Among the oldest temples extant in India are Ghumli, Gope and Bileshwar in the hills of Barda, between the coastal cities of Porbandar and Jamnagar. These temples date from the 7th to the 12th centuries and have interesting detailing. The Vikia vav at Ghumli is among Saurashtra's most impressive step wells.

Kutch is another region that has impressive Hindu temples at Kera, Kotay and Bhuvad, Jain temples at Badreshwar and Naliya, and shore temples at Koteswar, most of them dated to the 10th-13th century period. The Jadeja Rajputs became the major power of Kutch in the 16th century and over a period of four centuries forts and palaces were built in their state. One of the grandest of these palaces is the Aina mahal in the Darbargadh complex, which was embellished by Ram Singh, an artisan shipwrecked in Europe.

World Bamboo Day!

World Bamboo Day is celebrated worldwide on September 18 every year.

Bamboo is known as green gold, the tree of the poor, and the livelihood of the wilderness.

The bamboo tree has more carbon dioxide than any other tree, and is able to emit large amounts of oxygen. The overgrown bamboo can be cold.

Good news is that schools in the northeastern states are building bamboo.

It is astonishing news that globally the wall, the plywood for the walls and even the roof are made of bamboo.

Surprisingly, one of Europe's major airports, the roof of the T4 passenger area of Spain's "Marriott", has been covered by bamboo roof.

China ranks first in bamboo production and India is second.

The donation to Natural India is "Bamboo". The central government is popularized by the National Bamboo Mission. People should take advantage of it.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

The Editor should edit the Article before it goes for printing. In August 2019 issue the Article "The Unwritten History of the Sourashtrians of South India" by T.A. Ramesh contains factual errors.

It states that "Nobody knows the Saurashtra Script and also none reads or writes in that language" It only depicts the gross ignorance of the author about Sourashtra language and script.

The Editor also failed to remove the above sentence which is a prejudiced one.

Sourashtra script is available from 1876. Dr.H.N. Randle, Librarian, India Office Library London, has gone through the the book 'First Catechism of Sourashtra Grammar' in Sourashtra script by T.M. Ramarai in 1905. He has written article in BSOAS in 1943-46 and in Journal of Royal Asiatic Society, London in October 1944 issue about Sourashtra Language and script.

The script under the name Saurashtra (SAZ) is included in Unicode. Fonts are available and software Azhagi + has included Sourashtra language and now Text can be easily composed in Sourashtra Script. Messages in Sourashtra script can be sent through Mobile phones.

Many people are writing in Sourashtra script in Face Book and in Websites. Sonna Kodum readers are not to be misguided by Authors like T.A. Ramesh.

Kindly publish this in your SONNA KODUM next issue and oblige.

GET READY TO FACE THE NEXT CHANGE ...

In 1998, There are 170,000 employees in Kodak, who sell 85% of the world's photo paper.

In a few years, digital photography took them out of the market. Kodak went bankrupt, and all his staff went on the road.

HMT (watch)	Bajaj (scooter)
Dinora (TV)	Murphy (Radio)
Nokia (Mobile)	Rajdoot (bike)
Ambassador	Dinesh (Cloth)

There is no dearth of quality in all of this, but they were out of the market !!

Reason ???

They have not changed over time. !! You know that in the next 10 years, the world will change completely, and 70 to 90% of the businesses that operate today will be shut down.

Welcome to the Fourth Industrial Revolution. Uber is just a piece of software. Although he does not own a car, he is the largest taxi company in the world.

Airbnb is the largest hotel company in the world, even if they don't own a hotel. There are many examples, such as paytm, ola cabs, oyo rooms.

Young lawyers in the US now have no job, because IBM Watson Software provides excellent legal advice in a moment.

Over the next 10 years, 90% of American lawyers will become unemployed. 10% will be saved and they will be super specialists.

Watson's software makes cancer detection 4 times more accurate than humans. By 2030, computers will be smarter than humans.

Over the next 10 years, 90% of cars will disappear from the roads around the world... Survivors will be electric cars or hybrids...

The roads are empty. Petroleum consumption will be reduced by 90% and all Arab countries will go bankrupt. You get a car from software like Uber, and in a few minutes the driverless car will be at your door ...

If you share it with someone, the ride will be cheaper than your bike. 99% of accidents stop due to driverless cars. This will stop the business called car insurance.

No job like Driver is left on earth. When 90% of cars disappear from cities and roads, problems such as traffic and parking will automatically disappear, because a car today is equal to 20 cars, 5 or 10 years ago,

There was no such place where there was no PCO. Then when the mobile phone came in everyone's pocket, the PCO started to shut down

Then all those PCO people started selling the recharge of the phone. Now the recharge has even started online

Have you ever noticed ..?

Nowadays, every third outlet in the market nowadays has mobile phones. Sales, service, recharge, parts, repair, maintenance.

Now everything is done with Paytm. Now people have started booking train tickets from their phones. Cash transactions are also changing now.

The currency note was formerly replaced by plastic money, and now it has become a transaction.

The world is changing so fast. Keep your eyes and ears open, otherwise you'll be left behind....

Get ready for change over time. So a person has to change his profession and character over time.

Time to update and update time. Move with time and achieve success. ★
